This book, Landmarks in the History of Modern Indian Education, has now entered its silver jubilee year. Over the years and through the six editions it has undergone thus far, it has become a student's favourite. The book retraces the development of education in India since 1813 to the present day. Arranged chronologically, it also provides a progressive record of the thinking of policy makers who have been responsible for laying down the guidelines for future educational programmes and plans of action. The documents included in the book are rich in content and significant in the objectives that form the core of educational thought in India. They cater to the needs of trainee teachers, supervisors, educators and policy makers in education.

A first-of-its-kind analysis of the growth of new media in Digital India from a broad communications and interdisciplinary perspective Can new media help in bringing about development or contribute to social movements? Who is left out of the new media equation? How is the public sphere affected by it? How will it be regulated? Providing answers to these important questions, this book critically examines the growth of new media in India. It looks at how new media can be theorized in the Indian context and offers a perspective on the opportunities and challenges this poses to governance, development, and

This new volume, Green Consumerism: The Behavior of New Age Consumer, provides a holistic understanding the importance of promoting green products and discusses consumers' buying intentions and decisions. The chapters consider consumer behavior theory in the context of green or ecologically friendly products from both the academic and business perspectives. The chapters present the latest empirical and analytical research in the field of green marketing and provide an abundance of information about profitable and sustainable ways and strategies to deal with environmental problems. The volume considers how consumers are taking responsibility and becoming more aware, driving change in the marketplace. In response, companies are integrating appropriate green strategies into their operational activities, product development processes, and marketing activities to achieve a competitive advantage in saturated markets. This helps companies gain market share and minimize their production costs. Topics discussed in the volume include green pricing, green consumer behavior, various dimensions of consumer purchase intention, sustainable marketing, innovation techniques used to go green, eco-awareness, and other ongoing developments in this rapidly expanding area. Key features:

- Discusses research on the latest trends in the field of green marketing, green practices, green products, eco-literacy, environment awareness, protection, management etc.*
- Provides insight about current consumer behavior, consumers' eco-literacy levels, and their desires to go green*
- Covers a multitude of topics, including green pricing, green consumer behavior, sustainable marketing, innovation techniques used to go green, eco-awareness, and more*

In many non-Western contexts, modernization has tended to be equated with Westernization and hence with an abandonment of authentic indigenous identities and values. This is the case in the recent history of many Asian societies, where efforts to modernize – spurred on by the spectre of foreign domination – have often been accompanied by determined attempts to create national variants of modernity with the brand of local authenticity: 'Asian values', 'Chinese characteristics', a Japanese cultural 'essence' and so forth. Highlighting (or exaggerating) the associations between the more unsettling consequences of modernization and alien in-thus formed part of a strategy whereby elites in many Asian societies have sought to create new forms of legitimacy for old patterns of dominance over the masses. The apparatus of modern systems of mass education, often inherited from colonial rulers, has been just one instrument in such campaigns of state legitimation. This book presents analyses of a range of contemporary projects of citizenship formation across Asia in order to identify those issues and concerns most central to Asian debates over the construction of modern identities. It is not only about schooling, but also examines other vehicles for citizenship-formation, such as mass media and the internet; the role of religion (in particular Islam) in debates over citizenship and identity in certain Asian societies; and the relationship between state-centred identity discourses and the experience of increasingly 'globalized' elites. With chapters from an international team of leading contributors, this interdisciplinary volume will appeal to students and scholars of Asian studies, and society, Asian education, comparative education and citizenship.
